The Story Behind The Song!

Composer Aaron Schroeder receives the assignment to write a song based on Pat Boone's best selling book 'Twixt Twelve and Twenty' from music publisher Dick Overstake.

After reading the book Aaron applies the tools of his trade and the song is born.

Pat is deeply impressed as he hears the song for the first time.

Randy Wood, president of Dot Records, is equally impressed and calls for an immediate record session.

At the session Pat generates the same sincerity that made 'Twixt Twelve and Twenty' a successful book.

Jack Spina, Pat's personal manager, and Randy Wood at the control board radiate enthusiasm: "Pat, It's a hit!"

The sheet music cover, which deftly captures the mood of the music, is given finishing touches by artist Jack Cesareo and the publisher. The song is now ready for printing and distribution.

Pat introduces 'Twixt Twelve and Twenty' to the public on the Pat Boone Chevy Showroom. Immediate response by phone and mail justifies the efforts of the many people who lived The Story Behind The Song.
