VAMP

Min was Andy's lit-tle wife, — nev-er quarreled in all her life, — Got a-long as An-dy leads the simple life, — when he goes out, takes his wife; — Acts just like he nice, as nice could be, — But she started get-ting wise to An-dy's mil-lion al-i-bis, One did when first they wed, — Says it is -n't so much fun as lots of things that he has done, In morn when he got home at half past three; — An-dy nev-er sus-pect-ed, Nev-er-ex-pect-ed, the fact there's times he wishes he were dead; — He does all Min-nie wish-es, Washes the dish-es, he big sur-prise that Min-nie had in store; — 'Till a-gain he stayed out late, out-side he had to wait, For nev-er has a real time an-y more; — He's so tired of an-gel cake, that Min' has made him bake, He Min' had put the bolt up-on the door; — When he found he was locked out, The neighbors heard him shout.

 toes the mark so much it makes him sore, — He would rath-er be locked out, And have to stand and shout.

CHORUS

Oh! Min! What's the mat-ter Min. I nev-er saw you act this way before, Oh! Min! Wont you let me in,

Please come down and o - pen up this door; — It's mighty cold a stand - ing here you know, — And dearie there's no place for me to go, So, Oh! Min!

Min-nie, Min-nie, Min! Hon-ey wont you let me in. in.

Oh! Min! 2
