"Wish You Were Here"

Moderato

Friends used to say, "Hey there, Grumpy."
"Lift your chin up—off the floor."
But they're liable not to say that when we meet
From now on, any more.

Refrain (in leisurely tempo)

They won't know me! They won't know me! If you'll tell me what I long to hear you say.
I'll look seven stories high, I'll have sparklers in each eye, Sport a smile fresh as lilacs in May. When they see me, they won't know me. "No sir-ee, it cannot be," is what they'll say. Friends will perish from surprise at the change before their eyes. Dark to light, wrong to right, night to day! They won't know me, if you'll shine your love my way!

Interlude (freely)
make you feel so needed, you could do the same for me. I know that you can have your pick of fellows by the score. What have I got to offer or to share? But nobody you'd ever find could love you anymore, Anytime, anywhere!
When they see me, they won't know me. "No sir-ee, it can-not be," is what they'll say. Friends will perish from surprise at the change before their eyes, Dark to light, wrong to right, night to day! They won't know me if you'll shine your love my way!
