'Twas in an old Vir-gin-ia town, — The Summer moon was shining You've nev-er caused me to re gret, — That Summer night when we first down, — Just like an an - gel you came to me, — Fill-ing my soul with ec-sta-cy: The met, — There in the moonlight strolling a - long, — Life seemed so sweet with love's old song: For love that shone within your eyes, — Just seemed to have me hyp-no - tized, — I've since I looked up on your smile, — I seem to see it all the while, — And rall

looked ev-ry - where, but none can com-pare, you're like the rose that nev - er dies. — I know it's true, that you, on - ly you, have made Vir - gin - ia worth my while. —

CHORUS
a tempo

It took the bright blue skies of Dix - ie — to make you bloom so sweet and fair, — It took a south-ern rose, from where the cot - ton grows, to make the ros - es in your cheeks so rare — It took a dear old south-ern mam - my, — to teach you songs you did not know — It took the sun - shine from old cresc e rall

Dix - ie - land To make you a won - der - ful girl. — It took the girl. — D.S.
