from an editorial by Dr. James Francis Cooke in
THE ETUDE
music magazine

"We wish that all readers of THE ETUDE, who are seriously interested in 'trends' in American Composition, might secure a copy of this really remarkable book of interpretations upon Foster's priceless tune. It cannot fail to be a surprise. It is very important that musical workers who realize the value of keeping abreast of the times should know what these men in the workshop are thinking and doing . . . Better 'keep on your toes' and find out about them . . . You will be rewarded by encountering numerous fresh rhythmical and harmonic novelties."

Price $1.50

FOR THE FIRST TIME . . . America's foremost composers, arrangers and pianists offer their individual interpretations of a famous folk classic, which students and professionals will find entertaining and educational.

THE GREATEST INNOVATION IN MODERN AMERICAN MUSIC!

You've come to tell me that we must part, Some-how I How many times have you heard it said, "Don't change the knew this would be. All I can say, is old for the new." You had the old, 'twas
"May-be some day You may re-gret, dear, and don't for-get, dear," yours just to hold, May-be the new love won't be a true love.
